

I am commenting on the above proceeding as a resident of the state of Indiana. I DO NOT want our no-call regulations weakened one bit, for anyone. I recently moved and our new phone number is not yet on the list. It is extremely annoying to once again, be subjected to unsolicited phone calls, mainly from my credit card companies. Nothing they are trying to "SELL" me is of any practical benefit to me or to anyone else for that matter. It is simply their way of "grazing" their customers to see who's foolish enough to bite on their solicitations. If there were a tremendous need for this we the consumers would be asking you to let them call us. No consumer is asking for that! Because we don't want it!!!!

The phone is there for MY convenience, not my bank, my credit card company or anyone else. If their business with me concerns my account, they can contact me. If they are just trying to sell me some crap they can forget it. And that is all this regulation allows them to do, try to sell me some crap.
